• The addition of Lincoln St. sewer work to the program of the Accelerated Sewer Project has been ruled out by the federal government, and late word is that FFHA will also turn thumbs down on the Lowell St. extension that would serve the proposed Internal Revenue Service Center. The reason: both extensions are considered "outside the scope of the project." These items were proposed when it became obvious that there would be a cash balance when the project is completed.

• The subject of gravel pits will come up at Thursday night's Informal Selectmen's meeting. The reason: the Board is not satisfied with the way clean up work is progressing at the Foster pit.

KEEPING TO A 25-YEAR HABIT, Librarian Miriam Putnam assists Nedra Sanfilippo with research for some Andover High School homework. Library trustees will honor Miss Putnam at the annual Library Open House Sunday. (Cole)

Andover Librarian Observes 25th Year

(A Townsman News Feature)

Twenty-five years is a quarter of a century, but not to Miriam Putnam. She has breezed through a term that long as librarian at Memorial Hall, retaining a novice's enthusiasm and generating ideas with equal zeal.

Sunday the library's trustees will pay her special honor at the annual Open House, and Miss Putnam will reciprocate by making public a list of her 25-year favorites, the most memorable books published in the years since she came to MHL.

Very few books at Memorial Hall idle on the shelves long enough to get musty, and that is just the way Miriam Putnam likes it ... she wants a library crammed with what it takes to serve the "whole man." She has set up a program predicated on the belief that an interest in books and ideas can be stimulated, that people will reach further if encouraged to do so.

Peppy Miss Putnam was an in-

Department of Public Works employees succeeded in their public bid for coverage under the state Civil Service Law, winning approval Tuesday by just 112 votes.

The result was a surprise to most observers, including Town
Hall members of the Andover Employees Assoc. who were speculating Wednesday as to why the vote favored DPW workers on this occasion when two previous Town Meeting votes had gone against them.

The total count on the Civil Service question was 4,223 Yes votes and 4,111 No. There were 1,449 ballots left blank on this question.

Scattered observers said they had heard some resentment expressed publicly by people who took the position that Town Manager Richard Bowen should not have been so out spoken in his opposition to the employee move. The fact that he is new not only to Andover but to Massachusetts were cited as reasons for this attitude.

Bowen and the Town Employees
Assoc. came into open conflict on Ballot Question 8 after he approached the organization with a proposal for a municipally administered merit system. The association countered with full support for the public works employees.

All This . . . and Soft Pastels, too

One attribute of the good retailer is that he must be a good housekeeper, too. The year 1964 is one in which the Andover CO-OP engaged in a lot of good housekeeping.

First, we thought that the old boiler had had it. But careful examination showed that a few repairs would make it as serviceable as ever.

Then, we made an attractive CO-OP office over the store. Come up and see us, sometime.

Next, because the store's floor showed the wear and tear of a million shopping trips, we completely refinished it.

Only recently, we added new refrigerated cases to expand your choice of meats and frozen foods.

Our latest improvement is a complete repainting job, in five soft pastels. We hope you will like the color scheme.

The purpose of all this is to provide the right environment for pleasurable shopping. To the right location with the right food at the right price, we have been adding:

A WEDGEWOOD THANK-YOU all the way from England was received this week by Mrs. Arthur L. Wooten, 103 Dascomb Rd., the neighborly Andover woman who road pointed for three busloads of lost Britishers who visited the community last month. The Wedgewood bell came in appreciation from John Perkins, a director of Southern Newspapers Ltd. Mrs. Wooten led the more than 100 travelers to Andover Inn when bus drivers became confused by detour signs.

What Our Readers Say—

To the Editor of the Townsman:
"If, as you say, 90% of the town's voters were not present at town meeting when the vote was taken on the new high school building, the press owes the absentees an adequate explanation of the unexpected action.

"May I try to supply the explanation by asking and answering the following crucial question?"

"Is it smart to decide now on the size of an inflexible auditorium, good for fifty years' use, if we don't really need it now, and if we lack the facts on which to base a sound decision?"

"You can't very well add on to an auditorium. Once built, the capacity is fixed. Andover is now growing rapidly. To build a third auditorium of about the size of the two we already have will give no added capacity and may turn out to be very short sighted.

"If we really need an auditorium now, for either educational or general community use, we would have to build one of some size now.

"The high school building plan is a two-phase program. Phase one will accommodate 1,200 students and will take care of our needs to about 1972. Phase two will then increase the capacity to around 1800.

"Phase one, now under consideration, already provides ample new meeting places for large gatherings without adding a new auditorium. The new gym will seat 1200. The new cafeteria will seat 600. A small auditorium will seat 150. This makes 1950 new seats inside. In addition, 2000 can sit in the new bleachers outside, making a total new seating capacity of 3950.

"Moreover, we already have a fine auditorium on this site with a capacity of 760, only a few minutes' walk away. On this site, what is developing is not two separate and independent schools, but a single integrated upper-school complex with easily interchangeable facilities.

"Multiple use of the present high school auditorium will raise the capacity of large-scale facilities for 1200 high school students to 4730. This provides almost four special seats for every student during phase one.

"It follows that we don't need 1000 additional seats for educational purposes at this time.

"General community needs depend on town growth. If our population will double, we will someday need a large auditorium. The rate of growth during the next decade depends on many factors for which we do not now have the answers. This is a transitional period.

"Who can predict the effects of route 495, or of defense cutbacks, or of a galloping tax rate? Will the rising tax start an exodus, especially among people living on a fixed income? No one has a crystal ball; no one has the population facts on which we can now base a sound decision regarding the size of an auditorium to fit the needs of a distant future.

"Ten years hence we will be in a far better position to evaluate future educational and municipal needs. That, I think, is why the town voted to defer the auditorium until phase two of the high school building program."

THE WHOLE TOWN TURNS OUT in front of a Taiwan temple to see what Munro Leaf, author and cultural ambassador, has to say to children about democracy U. S. style. The author of numerous children's books, Leaf was abroad on his third trip to discuss the writing and publication of books for youngsters in countries where reading for fun is a little known pastime. (Leaf)

Cartoons, Nickel Words Explain US Government

(A Townsman News Feature)

"There is more than one way to skin a cat", an old saw that covers the subtle approach Author Munro Leaf takes to filling children's heads with wholesome thoughts.

Since 1934 Leaf's rough cartoons and light-touch narratives have been selling everything from good manners to democracy 'round at least half the world.

Now he has tackled explaining the U. S. system of government to children in a new red-white-and-blue edition called "Being An American Can Be Fun." He will introduce it to Andover readers Saturday, appearing at the Andover Book Store to autograph first editions.

Communist thought molders could learn a trick or two from the Andover author about how to plant a seed in fertile young minds. He is a devilishly clever propagandist with a rare talent for discussing worthwhile matters in a simple, but never condescending manner. His object lessons are punctuated with sketches of funny little moon-headed stick people, captivating to youngsters, Leaf thinks, because they bear such close resemblance to the kind of art work they themselves turn out.

In his government "primer" Leaf steadfastly makes the point that Being An American Can Be Fun if you live within the framework of the law, inspired by the ideals that fired the country's founders. He draws comparisons between life as it can be when "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" are guaranteed, as life as it is where freedom as plenty are myths.

When he talks about how lucky U. S. boys and girls are, Leaf speaks with authority for he has observed first hand now it is with children in 25 of the world's other nations. The one-time publisher and teacher has made three trips abroad as a specialist for the U. S. State Department, returning from his latest mission in May.

At the request of the governments of India, Thailand, Hong Kong, Taiwan, the Philippines, Singapore, Japan and Malaysia, Leaf (and his wife Margaret) met in these countries with publishers and teachers to encourage the writing, publication and distribution of children's books that will encourage individual and creative thinking.

In countries where memorizing classical passages is still the routine educational procedure, Leaf dispensed with simply trying to talk his audience into believing that children are capable of grasping complex ideas, properly packaged. "I would tell them to bring me the second grade or some other class, and then demonstrate the theory right there," Leaf says.

Leaf's latest is his 40th book and his 10th "Can Be Fun" volume. It was more than 30 years ago that he shifted from the publisher's chair to the author's typewriter, and the change came because he overheard an exasperated mother trying to cor-

"She was talking way over his head," Leaf recalls. Deciding there must be an easier way to communicate with children, Leaf did his first volume, "Grammar Can Be Fun", inking in a few crude sketches to show an artist what he had in mind for illustrations.

One professional after another came back with professional looking art work, too "pretty" to say what Leaf wanted to say. The final decision: to run the book with the author's original cartoons.

It has been a successful formula, leading to publication of a number of his books in a variety of foreign languages.

When Leaf works for the State Department, his wife goes along as an unofficial but valuable asset. Experience as an artist, as juvenile book buyer for Brentano's in New York, as an American wife and mother and civic worker has equipped her to lend Leaf a hand and branch out on her own to help women organize clubs or understand more fully the role of the American woman in life both inside and outside the home.

In three trips the Leafs have covered Southeast Asia, parts of Europe (including the USSR) and Scandinavia and the Middle East. If the chance comes, they will tackle South America, or Australia or Africa.

Their motivation: the fact that wherever they go the people they contact are eager to make a better world for their children.

Barbiturates - the synthetic lullabies - were first made in 1903 by Dr. Josef von Hering, physiologist at the University of Halle. Perhaps 2,500 or more different varieties have been made at one time or another, although the number in use today is about 50 of the "-al" ending sleep inducers such as amytal, bartital, luminal and nembutal.

Although barbiturates produce a dreamless, restful sleep, some people are allergic to the "-al" preparations and, further, because they tend to interfere with the normal chemistry of nerve cells, it is understandable why they are sold legally only when prescribed.

Which reminds us - wide-awake folks will discover a prompt prescription service at SHAWSEEN PHARMACY, Shawsheen Square. Try it. Free prescription delivery.

Privacy is just one of the wonderful things about an extension phone

Why have to shout over the noise of TV? Or shoo other people out of the room? An extension phone lets you call in quiet privacy. Saves a lot of running around the house. And it's a reassuring presence on your bedside table. A second phone costs only a fraction more a month than the first, yet doubles your telephone convenience. Call your Telephone Business Office. You'll find the number in the front of your directory.

WHY ORDER YOUR SNOW-BIRD TODAY?

Because every year we've ordered more and we still sell out. Even the factory's increasing production can't keep up with the amazing demand.

Snow Bird's popularity is no accident. It's the most soundly engineered snow thrower available. It's the only snow thrower that performs the three essentials of snow control. Feeds snow with a slow-speed rotary auger into a high speed blower that discharges the snow through an open-throated controllable chute that lets you aim the snow precisely. Easily handles snow that's wet and heavy, dry and flaky, or crusted. Model 226 Snow Bird cuts a 22" swath in deep snow with a new 4 h.p. easy-start snowproofed engine. Model 263 cuts a 26" swath through the deepest snow with husky 6 h.p. easy-start engine.

Tuesday Club Has
60th Anniversary

In a New England setting at Andover Inn, officers of the Tuesday Club of Andover lit candles on a birthday cake celebrating the 60th Anniversary of the organization last week.

Three fifty-year members, Mrs. Chester D. Abbott, Miss C. Madeleine Hewes, and Mrs. George E. Hussey, and past presidents were presented with corsages.

Messages from past presidents who could not attend were read by Mrs. Harvey G. Turner, current president. For the program, Rev. Roger W. Palmquist, lecturer, drew cartoons to illustrate his talk.

Tuesday Club projects include the knitting of afghans, the awarding of scholarship and the presenting of utility kits to veterans hospitals.

SATURDAY A BUSY DAY

Three West Andover housebreaks were reported Saturday, but valuables were missing in only one instance.

Police Department reports show that between 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. Saturday Michael Bolonian, 138 Chandler Rd., reported that someone had entered his home through a smashed window, ransacked drawers and left with a "few pennies."

At 2:07, Mrs. Ernest Zwicker, 195 Greenwood Rd., reported that her house had been ransacked and that a substantial sum of money and two watches were missing.

Later the same day Winona Baker, 66 River Rd., reported that someone had entered her house after breaking a pane of glass in the rear door. The home was ransacked but nothing was known to be missing.

Investigations are underway.

ATTENTION LEGIONNAIRES

Commander Benjamin Brown of American Legion Post #8 requests all available members to meet at the Legion Hall Sunday at 1 p.m. to assist in replacing the American Flag on the graves of all departed veterans, prior to the Veterans Day Services.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

An End To Secrecy

Hampton Beach riots, drag races on public highways, cocktail parties for teenagers, Easter debauches in Florida and vandalism that goes far beyond the ornery pranks each generation tolerates from its offsprings - - -

Such events and their frequently sordid results are raising questions that cannot be brushed aside with an "It was ever thus!" attitude.

It is a certainty that not all modern teenagers are rioters, or vandals - - - or anything but sensitive, intent and bound up in the age-old problems of preparing for maturity in whatever kind of world history deals them.

It may be true that on a percentage basis youngsters today are no better nor any worse than those of earlier generations. It may be that people the world over are just as moral as they have ever been; that they are simply less hypocritical about their immorality.

Whatever the statistical blend, the results are not the same and for one good reason: traditional age limits on all sorts of deportment are shifting. Too many young people are mixing adult and teenage behavior patterns, the worst of both, with dangerous results.

Since there can be no return to the Age of Innocence it is commendable that some in positions of public responsibility are for action, for taking a fresh approach to coping with today's youth until they are grown up enough to cope with themselves.

There was conviction in last week's statement by District Court Judge Arthur A. Thomson of North Andover declaring that juvenile defendants who come before him will no longer be protected from public knowledge of their misbehavior. "Secrecy alone," he maintains, "is not the cause of (the) growth in juvenile delinquency, but we can be sure that secrecy has not cured this evil."

Unquestionably some youths flout the law, knowing that their age is an effective legal shield. Others are grateful for the protection when careless disregard for property and human safety involves them in accidental trouble.

Exposure will not push every young violator into the straight and narrow, but a dose of embarrassment and the demand that they accept open responsibility for mistakes may salvage some who might otherwise come to laugh at our system of jurisprudence.

It is a technique that has been successful in curbing under-18 law breakers in Montana where Judge Lester H. Loble of Helena who waged and won a five year battle to get juvenile felons and traffic violators into open court. In the first 18 months after passage of Montana's open-court law, felony cases in Loble's district alone were cut 49 percent and traffic cases, 75 percent.

One petition which helped to get this act through the legislature was signed by 400 youngsters who said they were tired of taking the blame for the actions of youthful hoodlums whose names were kept out of print.

Also aimed at the control of the young, is the effort of two Massachusetts legislators to curb mischief on wheels by making 18, not 16, the legal age for licensed automobile drivers. Behind moves to raise the age limit are Rep. Albert P. Pettoruto (Andover) and Rep. George L. Sacco (Medford).

Sacco proposes, in addition, that junior or restricted licenses be issued to 16 and 17 year olds who would have to stay off highways between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. unless driving with a parent or legal guardian.

While religious leaders, educators and medical men puzzle about what can be done to keep kids a little longer in a world that demands educational scientific, cultural and business achievement at increasingly early ages, law enforcement people have to be realistic in their handling of current problems. A firmer approach to control is realistic.

Maturity is a state of mind, and it can't be legislated. But it will never come to those who are permitted indefinitely to postpone acceptance of responsibility for their own deeds.

MASSACHUSETTS BOYS SEEK APPOINTMENTS

United States Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) announced this week that three hundred seventy-five candidates from Massachusetts took the U. S. Civil Service designation examination for the service academies in his name on Saturday, Oct. 31st.

Competing for appointment to West Point, the U. S. Air Force Academy and the U. S. Merchant Marine Academy, the majority of applicants took the examination in Massachusetts. Others, away at school, or in the Armed Forces, were examined elsewhere throughout the United States and in Germany, Japan and Okinawa.

Down the Years with The Townsman

75 Years Ago - November, 1889

The new building of the Andover National Bank is being completed on Main St. It is three stories high, built of rough brick and with dark stone trimmings. The Masonic Lodge will occupy the entire third floor.

One of the head pipe layers for the waterworks is Colombo Pietro, a lineal descendant of the discoverer of America, Christopher Columbus.

Mr. Osgood and family of Cambridge will move to town, and occupy the Ballard house recently vacated by John N. Cole. Mrs. Osgood has a son in the middle class at the Seminary.

Almost the only thing that his opponents find to say against Candidate Boutwell is that he is a strictly temperance man.

John Ritchie, formerly in the employ of Smith and Manning, will sail Saturday on the Cunarder "Catalonia" for a short trip to Scotland. James Wood will sail with him.

A consumer using not more than 100,000 gallons of water per annum shall pay a minimum annual rate of $12 which payment shall entitle him to use 40,000 gallons of water per year, and thirty cents for each and every thousand gallons drawn in excess of this quantity.

50 Years Ago - November, 1914

The number of books issued at Memorial Hall library during October was 2758. At Ballardvale, 721 volumes were borrowed for home use.

At the November club Miss Belle J. Keeler will continue the classes in dancing formerly taught by Miss Helen Clark.

Charles Melande, who lives at the corner of Lowell St. and Chandler Rd. lost about seventy chickens on Monday. No clue as to the thief is known although the tracks of a rubber tired buggy were followed all over the West Parish by Chief Smith.

Last Monday the Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist Church held a husking bee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone on High St. About thirty-eight of the young people were driven to the house in a hayrack.

The November Club celebrated its 25th Anniversary at the first meeting of the club year.

The Andover Village Improvement Society will vote at its annual meeting on whether to accept the care of Indian Ridge Woodland, and the funds now in the hands of trustees.

25 Years Ago - November, 1939

After an alleged 70-80 miles an hour chase in which police fired four bullets, a car believed stolen from a Lawrence garage jumped into a tree on Osgood Rd., seriously injuring the two occupants, shortly before midnight Nov. 1. John Carlstrom of Lawrence was the driver.

On his last day as superintendent of schools, Henry C. Sanborn passed away Tuesday afternoon - still, as he probably had wished it, in harness, but without having been able to secure and enjoy the years of happy retirement which he had earned in his 22 years of service to Andover's children. What would have been his first day of retirement saw the flags of Andover drop to half-mast, the 1,600 students of the public schools stand in reverent silence after memorial services.

Miss Helen Collins of North Main St. is Attorney Collins from now on, having received her degree from Portia Law School recently. She was sworn as an attorney at the Suffolk County Court House by Judge James J. Ronan.

Under the direction of George Brown, well known cellist, teacher and conductor, of the Melrose Orchestral Assoc., a small orchestra has been formed in Andover.

10 Years Ago - November, 1954

Selectman J. Everett Collins (R) received a good vote here Tuesday, but lost out to Thomas F. Duffy (D) of Lynn in the contest for county treasurer.

Children's Book Week

Special displays of new books for young people are being featured all of this week in the children's room at Memorial Hall library and today at Ballardvale branch. At Ballardvale there is also some attractive new reading for teen tastes and a special display of new books for children.

Library Open House

On Sunday the twenty-fourth annual library open house will honor Miss Miriam Putnam, librarian. These Sunday afternoon affairs have been carried on without a break since 1941. Participants have included a wide variety of people, many of them doing significant work in their own fields. Among them over the years are notable authors and famous personalities including David McCord, Alan Crite, Mrs. Bradford Washburn, Herman Field, Isaac Asimov, Hart Leavitt, George Brown, Emily Flint, Munro Leaf, Edward Wagenknecht, Margaret Colt, Bruce Lancaster and Esther Forbes.

It is fitting that Miss Putnam has consented to give the program this year. For the occasion she has selected color slides from the collection she has made during four trips to literary shrines and famous churches in England and Ireland. Her latest trip to Britain found England at the height of spring last May when Andover still had some chilly reminders of the season passed.

The past twenty-five years have been highlighted by activities and experiments to expand library service to meet the needs of individuals and the community of Andover under Miss Putnam's guidance and sparked by her creative approach.

A Few Highlights

november from the day (1939) she arrived in Andover from experience with the library and only a year after she had pocketed cliffs and Columbia University degrees.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF LIBRARY SERVICE

november from the day (Aug. 1, 1939) she arrived in Andover, Mass., from experience with the Merrimack Valley library and only a few years after she had pocketed Radcliffe and Columbia University degrees.

After a trial, and an error, with a four-month demonstration of bookmobile service to West Andover, the plucky librarian spearheaded a 1941 Victory Book Campaign which collected 5,500 books for U.S. troops.

Then, in 1943, she warily tackled a big community service project and came up smelling like a rose. Financed by the American Library Assoc., she put on a series of eight Film Forums which hit such timely topics as "The Problems We Face; Russia; Minority Groups; China and the Post War World." It was the library's first venture with adult education.

The night of the first forum saw zero weather set in and the scheduled lady Chinese lecturer hinted for a cancellation. But Miss Putnam would have no part of such a setback; the forum went on and 30 stalwart Andoverians came to back her up.

Miss Putnam can still recall how she felt -- "I was awfully frightened it wouldn't come off, and awfully thrilled that it did." Enthusiasm for this series grew and it drew as many as 125 to some sessions. "But we couldn't do that today," Miss Putnam admits. "There is too much competition for people's time."

But in the least nostalgic -- funny, in fact, about some details -- Librarian Putnam thrives on change. She just adapts library purchasing and programs to suit the public mood, and in this she has seen some turnabouts in 25 years.

When she came to Memorial Hall, 66 percent of its circulation was in fiction. Today its the reverse situation; well over half the books checked out are non-fiction titles.

Why? "Some say the caliber of modern fiction is to blame. Perhaps it is more indicative of the fact that people know that to keep up with the world they must be informed," the librarian concludes.

To feed current needs, Miss Putnam says that the library is buying in areas that were of no concern 25 years ago, technical books on such subjects as aerodynamics and cryogenics, for example. "What our upper elementary readers ask for today is more like what high school students used to request," she says.

Sunday's open house will be held from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. At 3:45 p.m. Miss Putnam, answering requests, will give a slide-talk from her own collection: The Best of England and Ireland. Available in displays and lists will be books for Christmas giving, memorable books published in the past 25 years and Miss Putnam's favorites.

There are plenty of milestones to mark Miss Putnam's Andover stay. In 1946 she used funds contributed by the Andover Evening Study Program to purchase the nucleus of a now-expanded record collection.

In 1948, on her way home from a symphony concert, the sharp-eyed librarian saw a sketch of Lincoln on the Christian Science Monitor's front page. It was labeled as a copy of a "lost" sketch done in 1860 for the Boston Republican Club.

Experts duly consulted, Miss Putnam was later able to announce that the "brooding likeness" of a clean-faced Lincoln had been hanging for years in a dark corner at Memorial Hall. It came to the library with the residue of the estate of a former board member, George H. Torr.

The sketch has since been reproduced, appearing in national publications and attracting Lincoln enthusiasts and scholars to Andover.

In 1951 Miss Putnam launched the Great Books Discussion Group, which has had such continued good leadership from Robert Rockwell (president of the Merrimack Card Clothing Co.) and Helen Stearns (secretary to a Haverhill lawyer) that it continues to thrive.

In 1952 the library began its service to Andover elementary schools, in the beginning carrying MHL books into the schools and finally assuming responsibility for the building of permanent school libraries with School Department funds.

By keeping an ear open for teacher suggestions on books that will tie in with curriculum plans, the MHL has managed to stock and staff the school libraries without the sort of clash between public librarian-educator attitudes that could have throttled this unique program.

In 1953 the library print collection was started with the idea that home exposure to prints of good paintings would encourage borrowers to decide upon and purchase prints for their own permanent pleasure. For the fabulous fee of 25 cents for two months, library card holders can borrow a print and hang it at home.

In 1961 the new children's wing was dedicated and the microfilm reader was purchased. In 1963 the Board of Trustees, with the Selectmen's blessing, accepted a state invitation for this library to serve as a geographical regional center in the gradually emerging Eastern Regional Public Library System.

Under 1960 State legislation, MHL will receive funds for personnel and both circulating and reference books which would be available for use by residents in this entire area.

Central and Western regions are already in operation with their sub-library system, but Miss Putnam reports that it is taking longer to formulate plans for a region that encompasses about three million people and 180 cities and towns.

This regional plum has come Andover's way because of the library Miss Putnam and her staff has developed. There have been other recognitions of its excellence: one, its inclusion in a book on "Library Adults Education in Action," written in connection with a Rutgers University study.

Library trustees are well advanced with plans for further library expansion, another wing that would increase the library's capacity from 68,000 volumes to 100,000, and provide reading-room seats for 100 instead of the 38 it will now accommodate.

One look at the glint in Miss Putnam's eye as she shows architect's sketches of the proposed addition, and it is obvious she will stock the new stacks with the same enthusiasm she has shown from the start of her 25-year romance with Andover readers.

For Your Car's Best

The increasing trend to suburban living is reflected in the constant growth of two-car families. With the advent of the second car comes the problem of upkeep, multiplied by two. Ideally tailored to cope with this problem are the services and products offered by the Village Annex Texaco Service Station at 14 North Main Street, Andover, just below the Memorial Hall Library.

Service men at the Village Annex are Texaco trained and equipped with know-how, tools and products to keep car maintenance and operation at a minimum cost. Most important, this station provides interested care in the little things which so often make the big difference — battery level, oil level, cooling system, tire pressures and a clean windshield. The gasoline pumps are ready to dispense "cultivated" Texaco gasolines that are adjusted to our native climatic conditions and the attendant will give you green stamps, too.

With the coming of foul weather Winter driving conditions, it is well to have a reliable "home port" for your car or cars and townspeople who are regular patrons at the Village Annex know they have one. Join them and see.

Cleaners Supreme!

Do you need a cleaning firm that you can rely on? Well, then, Supreme Cleaners is ideally suited for you. All the work done on your clothes is truly supreme! Supreme, at the Shawsheen Plaza is centrally located for your convenience. Just drop off all of your items that need cleaning while you are doing your weekly shopping. Pick them up when you please or call 475-6636 for free truck service.

Now is a great time to pull out all your woollens. How about those sweaters? Are they a little wrinkled, soiled around the neck or sleeves? Are the pleats of your best skirt missing? Buttons off? Bring them all to Supreme Cleaners and have them cleaned and laundered to perfection.

Don't forget Dad's clothes too! Does his shirt look as though they have had it? Don't throw them out, a good cleaning with new buttons and alterations will give them that "fresh look" again.

Supreme Cleaners' service means just what the name implies.

Home Heating

The cold weather is really setting in. Are you finding that your heating system isn't properly suited to your home's needs? The best way to heat most buildings is from a central heating plant, the kind that distributes heat evenly throughout the house.

Call 682-7577 and ask for one of the competent service men to come out to your home and make an estimate on what it will cost you to convert to oil.

Or, if you already have an oil system — make the Martin Oil Company, 39 Oakland Avenue, Methuen your permanent oil dealer to supply you efficiently through the winter at a smaller cost to you!

Canoes To Boats

Thousands of years ago men found that they could use a log to support their weight on water. With this one log, they could cross lakes and rivers and explore deeper waters and new territories. Soon, they found that they could support themselves better by making a raft of several logs bound together. Then, in time, they learned to hollow out single logs to form crude canoes and how to benefit from the wind by making sails.

Nobody knows when or where these first steps were taken. We only know that as far back as we can trace the story, men have had boats of some sort. The first white men in America ever found the Indians paddling birchwood canoes in the streams, searching for food.

Boats differ from canoes chiefly in being more sturdily constructed and consequently heavier. They are easier to maneuver and can be taken anywhere that you go.

But, boats today are really quite different from the earlier crude makes. They are constructed to last you forever withstanding the sea and lakes wear and tear.

To become better acquainted with all the new boats, come down to the Merrimack Marine, 244 East Street, Route 110, Methuen. Look into all the facts and prices. It will make an excellent family gift for Christmas. No matter how big or small your new boat is, the family will be more than thrilled with a gift that they'll never forget!

World Travelers

This year, through travel, why not discover for yourself Peru. This ancient land is one of the real treasures to be found on the Pacific Coast of South America. Lima — "City of the Kings" the white granite ruins of the Machu Picchu, the towering Andes ... a world of wonder awaits you here ... especially Machu Picchu. For almost 400 years nobody even knew it existed for it was well hidden high on the mountaintop deep in the Andes of Peru.

Today, you can visit this incredible "Lost City of the Incas" easily and comfortably; or at least include it in a tour of South America's west coast. Or go from almost any United States city completely around South America and back for less than you think.

But, first stop in at Sutton's Travel Agency, 263 Common St., Lawrence or 1 Lowell Street, Andover. This is Merrimack Valley's most experienced travel agent, international and domestic. Drop in for your free consultation now, and don't miss out on all the wonders that the world has to offer.

GOOD
evil

Must human existence always be a mixture of good and evil? Is there a modern answer to this age-old riddle of creation? You're invited to hear how men today are finding, in a spiritual discovery, the underlying reality of life. In a one-hour public lecture Thomas A. McClain of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship will explore this subject: "The Key to the Mystery of Creation." Everyone is welcome to come and listen.

November Club 75 Years Old

Celebrating 75 years of activity, the November Club met Monday for luncheon, a review of the club's history and prognostications about its future.

Mrs. Edward I. Erickson was toastmistress, introducing Miss Evelyn Jenkins, president, and others on the program.

Recalling outstanding programs of the past, Miss Goldsmith reported that the club was established to search for the best in literature and art, to be well informed on current affairs and to serve the community.

Miss Ernestine Bellamy looked forward to the next 75 years, linking the club's future with scientific advancements which will permit women to enjoy a more abundant life.

Also on the program were Mrs. Arthur G. Weaver, soloist and S. Scott Barchy, accompanist.

On the committee were Co-chairmen Mrs. George E. Haselton and Mrs. Henry J. Stevenson, Mrs. Erickson, Miss Goldsmith, Mrs. Joseph O. Smethurst, Mrs. Howell M. Stillman and Mrs. Robert B. Hatton who designed the program cover.

Abbot Changes Day-Girl Rules

Applications for admission as a day student to the ninth grade at Abbot Academy will be accepted this year from any girl living within commuting distance of the school. Announcement of this change in policy was made today by Mrs. Alexander Crane, Principal.

For a number of years day students have been drawn only from those living in Andover or North Andover, but the Trustees have expressed a desire that geographic restrictions be eliminated. However, Abbot day students, wherever they may live, must be able to be at the school any time their presence is required, which may include Saturday or Sunday.

The number of students offered admission will be slightly increased, and twelve or thirteen will be admitted in 1965. They will be selected on the same basis of school record, ability as measured by standardized tests including the Secondary School Achievement Test, and a recommendation from their present school principal or guidance officer. An interview at the school is requested.

The Secondary School Achievement Test will be given on Dec. 12. Application to the Educational Testing Service, in Princeton, New Jersey must be made by Nov. 28. Bulletins of Information for this Test are available at the Admissions Office. Those interested should call Mrs. Ford Duncan, Director of Admissions.

• Town Manager Richard Bowen this week ordered all burning at the Andover dump, previously operated on a 5 percent landfill basis.

• The Richardson School on Lowell St. may be legally demolished, but the Board of Selectmen will have to ask Town Manager Richard Bowen for authorization and approval. According to Town Counsel Frank O'Brien, Manager Richard Bowen has asked that demolition of the "attractive nuisance" be considered, extending the playground area already available.

• The Town will take steps to determine if a qualified elevator inspector lives in the community before further consideration of turning this job over to the Manager Richard Bowen. Bowen is letting the state Public Safety assume full responsibility for technical operation since Andover has too few elevators to keep a fulltime inspector busy. State inspections are made at regular intervals, duplicating local efforts.

• Roland Dewhurst, 40 County Rd., received first second degree burns on both face and ears Sunday when a line exploded at his home. He was pouring gas into the carburetor when it ignited.

• For the second time the town will advertise its willingness to sell the Bradlee School, eliminating the $50,000 upset stipulated previously. If bids do not come in (none were received previously), a public auction will be scheduled.

• Phinney's Television Stereo, Inc., located in Old Andover Village shopping center entered at approximately 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Owner Robert Phinney reports that a $25 tape recorder was taken. He placed a value of $100 on the tape recorder.
